No. 4.

Relying on other parties for the illustration of figures and staging of the minstrel show, it was too late to secure anything after realizing we were to be disappointed, and so our friends of the chorus will have to take the will for the deed, and confine ourselves to the accompanying good likeness of the efficient manager, Mr. C. F. Ford.

Arlington Minstrelsy.

At the culmination of long preparation, hard practice, and excellent management, one of the best minstrel shows ever given in Arlington, took place in Town Hall, two evenings of the current week, on dates of Jan. 14th and 15th. It was only at the last moment that it was decided to give a second performance, but as the whole house was sold out in advance and there was a demand for more seats, it seemed wise to repeat it. The entertainment was given under the auspices of St. Agnes Catholic church of the town by members of Arlington Glee Club and the choir of the church, with Mr. Charles F. Ford as business manager, Mr. J. J. Nolan musical director, and Miss Lucy J. Butler, the organist of the church, treasurer and general assistant. Mr. Ford was aided very materially in getting out the eight-page advertising programme, which added largely to the receipts of the affair, by Mr. Thos. F. Meagher, and both are deserving of much praise for their efforts in this direction, for the work required is by no means a modest matter. An orchestra, besides the pianist, added to the completeness of the rendition of the chorus and solo numbers, while no work or expense was spared to make the presentation an up-to-date and snappy vaudeville show.

At the first performance, on Tuesday evening, Town Hall was packed almost as tight as a sardine box from the foot lights clear out to the entrance doors at the rear of the hall, while there were many standees where there was not sufficient room for seats. It was a fine audience, made up of the best as well as the leading elements in Catholic circles of the town, with a number of attending friends from out of town. Many of the ladies, in fact most of them, removed their hats, so that the company had quite the effect of a Boston theatre audience. It was an appreciative company of friends of the performers, but never boisterous, but this latter element would not have naturally been evoked, for the performance was bright, entertaining, witty and humorous, but never vulgar or in bad taste. The programme of choruses and songs was encased at the close of each number, but the director had wisely limited the soloists to a response to only the concluding phrases of her or his song, winding up with a rouser on the choruses.

What we have said in regard to the first presentation is applicable in a large measure to the second performance on Wednesday evening although as was to be expected the attendance was not so large. It was only decided at the last moment to repeat the program, so the advertising of the fact was limited. The hall was too full for comfort the first night so those who heard it the second had more comfort. The following is the list of those making up the chorus. It should have appeared in another place but was omitted so we append it here:—

The stage was tastefully arranged to set off the circle, while this presented a dashing appearance in its stunning costumes a la minstrel vogue, where brilliant colors run riot and the extravagant absurdity of dress adds so much to the fun as well as success of the show. Everything in this line was as professional as possible and the effect as a whole was fine—we have seen nothing better. The bones and tambos were gorgeous, —the men in wonderful red and white striped trousers, red coats, blue and white shirts, were as astonishing as a flashing meteor; the ladies were almost as gay as canaries in orange and black skirts and jackets. The ladies in the centre on the first row were dressed "two-by-two," that is, a pair in blue satin and spangles, another pair in red and the third in yellow, each of these costumes having touches of black about the jackets. Back of these was a row of ladies dressed in white pique skirts and lawn waists, with red ribbon bows, making a fine background for the brilliant colors of the other costumes, while they had the contrast of the black satin costumes trimmed with yellow facings, worn by the gentlemen who stood behind them. Seated in the midst of this galaxy of color was Mr. William H. Nolan, the interlocutor, all dressed in white satin, made in the becoming fashion of a court costume. Mr. Nolan carried off the costume to perfection, it proving both becoming to face and figure, while in his role as interlocutor he was easy and natural and carried off the part with entire success. There were some local "raps," but they were not of a nature to hurt or offend any one, while the jokes were laughable and added to the fun of the audience and gave the right balance in not making the more serious parts too much of a good thing.

The opening chorus was grand. It included all the popular songs of the day which have a swing and a melodious cadence, and when rendered by a chorus of good voices with the parts well distributed made the results entirely satisfying. The bones and tambos made merry music, while their steps and eccentricities were in harmony with the music besides giving the scene the vivacity of movement and grace. The end song by Mr. Frank Burns "caught on," while Mr. William Kelley's beautiful tenor voice met with a quick response from hands. Miss Mabel Grey's monologue recitation, with musical accompaniment and chorus response, was one of the best hits on the program, yet was in striking contrast with Miss Katherine T. McGrath's artistic rendering of a tuncful and pleasing ballad. Miss Nellie Cunningham brought down the house by her up to date mimicry of the professional vaudeville star in her song, "Go away back and sit down." After this was a serious ballad sung by Mr. Geo. H. Nolan, who displayed a round toned and rich baritone voice, much appreciated amid the lighter and more comic features of the program.

POST OFFICE BUILDING,

ARLINGTON,

Somerville Electric Light Co.
F. ELLWOOD SMITH, Gen'l Mgr
10 Willow Ave., West Somerville

Municipal Lighting.

Shall a town own and operate its lighting plant? Ever since the introduction of electricity as a means of furnishing artificial light, there have been men of acknowledged probity and ability who have strenuously advocated such ownership. Under the guidance of Mr. Sparhawk of Marblehead, a general law was enacted by the Legislature of 1891, permitting ownership, and to-day there are seventeen towns and cities in Massachusetts supplying their citizens with light under the provisions of this act.

Arlington has a sub-committee engaged in investigating this matter, and at their suggestion a public discussion was held in Associates' Hall, Monday evening, under the auspices of Arlington Improvement Association. President Rawson dispensed with all routine business and at once opened the way for discussion by calling on Mr. H. A. Freeman of the sub-committee. He said that the feeling was generally among citizens that the time for retrenchment in town expenditures had arrived, and that the probability was that the cost of lighting might be reduced. The contract under which light is now furnished expires in May, and as there is a considerable sentiment in favor of municipal lighting, the committee was anxious all that could be secured in the line of information might be presented. The committee will report to the March meeting unless sooner called upon.

Selectman Sparhawk of Marblehead (it was he who introduced the measure in the Legislature) was then introduced. He briefly told the incidents connected with the enactment of the law and followed with the story of installing a plant in Marblehead. Fortunately that town was not obliged to put out any money in the purchase of rights possessed by a private corporation, and the $10,000 appropriation and $50,000 raised by sale of bonds was ample to install the plant. He gave way to Supt. Haskell, in charge of the works, who read from a printed report a detailed statement. Evidently the plant was built on honor and equipped with the best appliances for furnishing light. He then described how the plant had been enlarged and now represented a total of $96,000. He gave figures along all sorts of converging lines, the result being the showing a cost of $58.30 for arc lights; $7.96 for 16 candle power incandescent; $12.37 for 25 candle power; $14.97 for 30 candle power. These figures are less than any other similar plant in the state, and he cited Braintree $82.00, Chicopee $104.00, Danvers $67.51, Middleboro $77.99, Peabody $73.97, Reading $83.87, Wakefield $77.74. The charge for commercial lighting was 15 cents.

Supt. Lee, of Concord, Mass., followed with details regarding that plant. The street lighting is almost wholly with incandescent lamps, experience having proved them to be better than arc lights, owing to the large number of trees along the highways. The arc lights cost $107.50. The commercial lighting was furnished at 12 cents.

Prof. Hooper of Tufts College, a director in the Somerville Electric Light Co., was then called on. He said that a subject of this kind could be properly considered in a broad and large way only,—that details in regard to the working of any one company, or even a few, were of small value. Law is not a respecter of persons, or corporations; its acts impartially with individuals, municipalities or corporations. If making electricity is as profitable as is supposed, why do so few companies make money? Not half of them paid dividends last year and three did not make running expenses. Is it supposable that a municipality can carry on business more economically than a private corporation? The trouble with all the figures given out by the superintendents of municipal plants is, that not enough is allowed for depreciation. Instead of five per cent, it should be double that at least. In view of this, it is evident that the difference in favor of municipal lighting as shown in the cost per lamp, is seeming and not real. This in brief was his argument. The speakers all answered numerous questions, the result being the acquiring a fund of information regarding small details.

The meeting passed a vote of thanks to the speakers. Just before the meeting closed Prest. Rawson vacated the chair, having an appointment, and Vice-Prest. Hardy took his place. The meeting lasted a little over two hours.

Arlington Minstrelsy.

which same comment may also be passed on Miss Harriet Colbert's solo part, her sweet soprano voice being heard to advantage in her attractive solo number. Dr. F. H. Clock was entirely successful in burlesquing his song, acting it out and exerting all his fund of drollery to captivate and amuse his hearers. The laughing song by Mr. J. J. Desmond was in this same line, and his clever performance was infectious, for he got all to laughing before he had concluded. Mr. Jas. P. Donnelly's baritone voice was heard with much pleasure in a ballad and he is to be complimented on the quality of his share in the programme. Mrs. Amanda Beauchemin came very near the last but by no means the least in her end song, "Every darky had a raglan on." Her impersonation was capital and she dressed the role assumed to perfection carrying off her togs, including a high silk hat, brilliant red raglan and cane, in true "coon" style. Mr. Ford reserved one of the best things for the last which included his own solo given in the "grand finale" of "Brown October Ale." Mr. Ford's fine bass voice suited this jolly song admirably and the whole made a most effective conclusion to part one.

Part two opened, after a lively selection by the orchestra filling a brief wait, with buck and wing dancing by Dessault, who appeared alone, his partner, known as Cuno, being unavoidably detained. He gave a great performance and was warmly encored. Mr. Frank Burns was heard in one of his clever character songs, full of fun, and Mr. Harry Wyman, of Boston, also gave a selection along this line of talent. Miss Mabel Grey contributed a welcome variety in her dramatic and most effective rendering of "The Race." She was repeatedly recalled, but only bowed her acknowledgments, refusing the encore because of the lateness of the hour. The programme concluded with what was called the roaring comedy "Deception," and it proved all this in every sense of the word. Mr. Philip A. Hendricks was an adventurous "promoter," trying to sell a "fake" trained elephant to farmer Brown (P. F. Meagher). The two dissatisfied farm hands are bribed to act the part of the elephant, which "Phil" rigs up on the stage, amid peals of laughter at the ingeniously contrived human elephant. Of course the farmer is taken in, the elephant gets like sin, and the situations are nothing less than a roaring farce which was not lost on the big crowd present. Messrs. Jos. Varney and J. J. Nolan were front of sight as the elephant, and the whole thing was "all right."

The remainder of the evening till a late hour was spent in dancing, as soon as the hall could be cleared, but this was not early, for the entertainment was not over till nearly eleven o'clock. Floor director C. F. Ford, assisted by Wm. H. Nolan, had the dance in charge, while the aids were Messrs. Jas. H. Ford, J. F. Welch, John F. Hendricks, Joseph Varney, Frank J. Rowe, Chas. Beauchemin, Jas. M. Mead. Many came into the dance who were not at the entertainment, so it was a large party. The ushers had to display no little skill in seating the big audience at the opening of the evening. Those discharging this duty were Messrs. Jas. J. Mahoney, P. B. Corrigan, John A. Bishop, A. F. Crowley, Chas. B. Hurley, Jas. P. Daley, D. W. Grannan, the latter, however, having charge of the tickets.

Rev. J. M. Mulcahy, pastor of St. Agnes, was present to encourage his young people, while he and all who had given their countenance to the affair must have been gratified with its entire success. —The snowfall of Saturday night made fine sleighing on Sunday. It was of a light nature, easily trodden down, and with the good foundation which came a few days before, made great sleighing for those who were willing to face the rather disagreeable wind that prevailed most of the day.

—Mrs. H. H. Kohlisaat and daughter, Miss Pauline Kohlisaat, of Chicago, were in Washington at the time of Miss Roosevelt's debut, Miss Kohlisaat being a guest at that notable event. Roosevelt's personal friends.

—The secretary, Mrs. George Stearns, having been seriously ill, no mention has been made of the meeting of the Chautauque Circle which was held at Mrs. Thomas Williams', when the usual Chautauque readings were given. Among the miscellaneous numbers was given a description of a preparation made for a threatened freeze in the semi-tropical land of Florida, accompanied by souvenirs of the beautiful "Poinsettia," from a well known absent member.

—On Thursday evening, Jan. 9th, Miss Jennie L. Gott entertained eight of her intimate friends at her home on Medford street, in honor of Miss Lillian Blake and Miss Ollie Haines, whose engagements were announced at Christmas. A chafing dish lunch was served, after which toasts were given by each of the young ladies. The girls in whose honor the occasion was given, were presented with numerous articles of tin ware which afforded much merriment. This item was received last week too late for the paper of the issue of the 11th inst.

First Parish Alliance.

The literary meetings of the Arlington Unitarian Alliance are one of the pleasant social features of the church, attended as it is by a large percentage of the ladies who meet there together, exchange greetings and make it an enjoyment for even the visitor who may happen to be among them. The presence of the pastor, Rev. Frederic Gill, is also an acquisition, denoting as it does his interest in all that pertains to his church and parish.

The meeting on Monday afternoon was no exception to the general rule, when there was a large attendance, presented to enjoy the paper on "Heroism," presented by Rev. Thomas Van Ness, pastor of the Second Unitarian church, of Boston. Miss Robbins, president of the Alliance, introduced the speaker, who was given the entire afternoon for his subject. Mr. Van Ness' paper was scholarly, given in a dramatic and rhetorical style, full of vivid word pictures illustrating thrilling instances of heroism and bravery. The principal thoughts gathered were that we must render obedience, if there is to come heroism. That this should be the chief aim of every living thing.

There are many traits that enter into heroism,—that which makes the soldier respond to the word of "forward" from a commander, even in the face of death; of the engineer, who is willing to lose his own life to save those of thousands in his care; of the persons who are ready to stand by their convictions, even though it may mean persecution, as it did in the case of Martin Luther, Joan of Arc, and many others of their stamp. Finally, that superior type of heroism which recognizes the Divine power ruling the universe and is willing, with that help, to go forward in the performance of the duty. Thus to have heroism we must first be obedient; second, have the physical courage to act; third, the moral fortitude to stand and be guided by the heavenly vision. Those who attain this must think most, act noblest and live best.

The social tea which followed was served by Mrs. S. G. Damon and daughter, Mrs. Arthur J. Wellington, assisted by some of the young ladies of the Alliance.

WOMAN AND FASHION

A Charming Tea Gown.

Tea gown of cream crepe de chine, plaited all around at the top, the plaits opening out below the waist. The low neck is bordered with a pretty draped fichu and fluffy knot of cream mousseline de sole edged with embroidery in delicate colors.

The bottom of the skirt is finished with the embroidery and with applique roses of pink gauze. The large sleeve consists of two full puffs and a deep frill trimmed with the embroidery.—Chic Parisien.

Woman's Louis XVI. Coat.

Louis XVI. coats, with all their picturesqueness of big revers, hip pocket lugs, turnover cuffs and lace trimmings, are among the season's favored designs. This highly effective model is cut in the most fashionable lines and is adapted to velvet, velveteen, handsome cloth and silk, either with skirt to match or in contrast. The original makes part of a costume, the material for which is hunter's green velvet, and is trimmed with bands of mink and large jeweled buttons, the rest being of brocade and the revers, collars and cuffs of Irish crochet over white satin.

The waist portion fits snugly and includes single bust darts. The skirt is seamed on at front and sides, but cut in one with the back, and the pocket lugs are attached at the seams. The vest also is closely fitted and is joined to the fronts, which are extended to turn back and form revers. The sleeves are in coat style, with roll over, flaring cuffs, and the neck is finished with a deep turnover collar.

Combination Party Gown.

As party gowns are such expensive luxuries, the girl of limited income cannot afford more than one, which must answer for all dress occasions. Being to all intents and purposes an evening costume, it is of course made décollete, so in order to make it suitable for other affairs that demand an elaborate but high necked gown the economical young woman has several yokes and pairs of sleeves made of net, chiffon and lace to give variety to this combination gown. The pretty lace yokes that may be purchased so cheaply just now are the very thing for these useful accessories when they can be matched in other lace from which the sleeves may be made.

A Stylish Blouse.

The last blouse is of raspberry red cloth, with a perfectly plain stretched back and the front adorned at either side with a cluster of small tucks, while the low cut neck and the crossed fastenings are edged with a band of white taffeta piped with black taffeta. The collar and plastron are of cream lace, and the tucked sleeves are finished with tucked cuffs trimmed with bands of white taffeta piped with black.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Gown With the "Flare."

In spite of the curtailing of the walking skirt the reception gown still retains its elegant proportions, in many cases the flare which was formerly supplied by the shaped frill being produced by a series of gores to the ground, which convey an impression of height and are very graceful.

Girls' and Children's Leggings.

Warm, comfortable leggings are essential to every winter outfit. For the girls and children they are necessary in all weather as a protection against cold. For the misses, with their longer skirts, they are essential in rain and snow, optional on clear days, but should never be neglected.

Economizing.

Of course there are exceptions to the rule in this case as in almost every other that can be named, but the fact remains that wealth and its attendant comfort and responsibility is achieved by intelligent, pains-taking economies,—the cutting of desire here and the shrinking of legitimate expenses there, until the surplus laid aside becomes the main factor in the production of added wealth. All fairly well-to-do people realize this as the basal principle in the law of accumulation and govern their expenditure accordingly refraining from anything approaching extravagance, refusing to run into debt except in a legitimate business way in trade and commerce, and are often more concerned about meeting obligations at maturity than in many details of their business.

Is there one law that applies to the individual and another to communities, or is it operative alike with all? That this is a pertinent question just now, every one will admit in view of the unusual talk about retrenchment and economy one hears on the trains and in business places. The curious thing about all this talk, however, is that it is in every department of town expenditure but the one under discussion that a substantial cut can be made. We would not be positive, but our impression is that every important board in charge of local affairs involving any considerable expenditure of money, not only does not see a place where expenditures can be reduced without real damage to the town and in reality need more for the coming year than the one just closed. In the matter of salaries, where are the officers who consider their work overpaid?

This is the situation to-day,—an exceedingly high tax rate, only normal increase in valuation, a demand for larger and better things for the months to come, which simply means more money to be raised. It is a common thing to hear this annual high total of appropriation charged to the "single poll tax payers," but is this in any sense fair or just? Perhaps in the matter of appropriation for the fire department, there may have been rallying of forces to carry out the wishes of the men, but what an insignificant addition the largest ever carried against concerted opposition has been compared with the grand total, and has not the expenditure invariably received final commendation? No, the citizens who are responsible for the annual grant are in the main of the class to whom we have referred, who, by systematic economies, are fairly well off. It was this class that demanded and expressed willingness to pay for the increased cost of the vastly improved lighting system we enjoy to-day, and voted with almost entire unanimity for our park system. The same people insist on having good roads and side walks, comprehensive police protection and all possible safeguards against fire,—in fact to rival the city in all that conduces to the comfort of the individual and the improvement of the town, and until these people are willing to unite and act harmoniously for a substantial cut in every department of expenditure, it is almost idle to talk of retrenchment.

The committee in charge of the Wokett Memorial, money for which came by popular subscription from all parts of the State, have asked permission from Gov. Crane to ask for a location for the same upon the State House grounds. Of all places this seems to us the most appropriate. He was the ideal Governor in physique as well as in conduct, and his monument, erected by the generous outpouring of funds from all classes of people, make the place where he rendered his most conspicuous service the ideal location for the memorial. From the wording of the letter it would seem the committee contemplates something more than a life-like statue, and it may mean a companion work to that which commemorates the service of Col. Shaw, serving as he did during the period of the war with Spain.

The reports of the doings of the District Police for the year make a volume of over 300 pages, as the matter covers a wide range and contains a large mass of statistics in tables. Building inspection is in the department of which Rufus Wade is the head, and in his report to his superior, Mr. John T. White presents a picture of the Cutter School in Arlington, a description of the building and plans showing the heating and ventilating plant, which is claimed to be a model. We are indebted to Mr. White for a copy of the book.

Legislative Items.

The Woman Suffrage party is early on the ground asking for the striking of the word "male" from the constitution.

Hon. Herbert Parker, the new Attorney General, took possession of his office this week and entered upon the discharge of his duties.

The Public Service Committee began its hearings on the recommendations of Governor Crane on the consolidating of commissions, on Thursday. It is expected the hearings will cover at least two weeks.

A committee of the Middlesex Bar Association appeared before the Legislature on Tuesday, to urge the bill providing for an increase in the number of Judges of the Superior Court. The present congested condition of the several courts is their strongest argument.

The prevalence of smallpox in Boston and elsewhere has developed weakness in the law regarding vaccination and an effort will be made, with every prospect of success, to prevent a class of exemptions that were not intended when the bill now in force was drawn and enacted.

The chairman of the Board of Assessors of our neighboring city of Somerville has just discovered an error in the recently Revised Statutes that will require correction by a new Act. As the law now reads, the list of assessed polls in every town must be published in a Boston paper, while the intent was that the advertising should be in each place where the assessment was made.

A very active lobby in the interests of the likely-to-be-deposed people serving on commissions the Governor suggests abolishing or consolidating, has been at work at the State House, but it is generally believed that the recommendations in the annual message will in the main be adopted, and by an unpartisan vote. The unwisdom of attempting to make political capital out of this seems to be apparent to the leading Democrats in the House.

An important hearing was held at the State House on Wednesday, when the Metropolitan Park Commission presented argument and testimony in favor of a tide-water dam across the Charles river, either at Cragie or Cambridge bridge. Only a very small section of abutting land is now owned by private parties, and the representatives of the U. S. Govt. in charge of the Arsenal property favor the plan of maintaining a uniform depth of water above what shall be decided upon as the harbor line. It is proposed to make this the central figure of the park system, as it runs through the entire district west and east and is the only river in the district that suggests a water way or water park.

Dr. Wm. Oscar Perkins.

Dr. Perkins died suddenly on Monday of an internal affection, in his 71st year. The funeral took place at the Parker Memorial, Boston, on Wednesday, at two o'clock, and the burial was at Fallsville, Vt. Dr. Perkins was born at Stockbridge, Vt., May 23d, 1831, of excellent parentage and distinguished ancestry, the family emigrating from England in 1630. Dr. Perkins was a musician from his earliest boyhood and was identified with the leading musical societies of Boston, while the high quality of his compositions was appreciated and published by such firms as Oliver Ditson and others of like standing. He was a man of wide research, extensively read, with a bright, lucid mind and withal had a vast fund of information on many subjects. His literary ability was exceptional and his articles on current questions of importance found frequent publication, the Boston Transcript having printed many of his articles. Rev. C. W. Wendte conducted the funeral, the musical selections being by the Temple Quartette. Mr. Wendte's eulogy of Dr. Perkins was both eloquent and fervid, presenting him for admiration and imitation as a man of high ideals, to which he constantly conformed, and of eminently useful life. Among the mourners were E. H. Perkins, a brother; Mrs. George S. Cheney, a sister; Mrs. A. J. Fairbanks, a niece, and Earl Vaughan, a cousin of Dr. Perkins. A Lexington friend of the doctor's has furnished us the following, which we gladly print:

For several years Dr. Perkins has been a resident of Lexington and his tall and erect figure has been a familiar sight on our streets. He was interested in our schools and in the general good of our village and was always to be seen at our town meetings, taking a deep interest in whatever concerned its welfare. He was a member of the Lexington Historical Society, contributing relics of value to the collection, and took part in its debates and literary exercises.

He was a life-long member of St. John's Lodge of F. & A. M. of Boston, where at one time he was urged to accept the nomination to the office of W. M., but fearing its duties might interfere with his profession, he declined the proposed honor, but was an ardent friend of the order and regularly attended the meetings of Simon W. Robinson Lodge in this village.

In the summer of 1900 he accepted the cordial invitation of friends in Kansas to visit that state and spend a year there. If he went there for rest and recuperation it was not long before he commenced the work which his intensely active mind demanded and he studied up the early history, the great men, the mineral capability, the farming interest, the flora and fauna, and our papers here in the east gave his letters to their subscribers.

Politically he was an ardent Republican, and while in Boston was very active in the management of the affairs of this party; so when in Kansas the McKinley campaign was being carried on, so near the home of the free coinage party, he became an active advocate for sound money and stumped that portion of the state in which he was staying, against free silver and the Populist heresies, effecting many conversions to sound money by his able and reasonable utterances upon "Coinage." "Tariff" and kindred subjects.

Dr. Perkins never married, so had no settled home. This induced him last fall to secure a home for himself by payment of the required sum in the "Home for Aged Men," 133 West Springfield street, Boston, where he found every comfort and much happiness, and where his sudden death took place.

An Awful Fall.

Mr. Thomas Williams of Arlington, has for a long time had charge of the Howe estate comprising several buildings from No. 62 to 78 on Devonshire St., Boston. A few years ago he moved to Arlington with his family and later built a pleasant home on Belknap street. They at once took a prominent place in the Pleasant St. Congregational church by entering heartily into all its activities and made a wide circle of friends whose sympathy will go out to his wife and daughters and little son in view of the disaster overtaking him last Wednesday. In the line of his duties he went to the roof to dislodge an accumulation of ice and snow and had about accomplished the task and was preparing to enter the building through a window, when he lost his balance, clutched hold of the side of the building but was unable to retain it, falling the distance of some six stories to the sidewalk. He was unconscious when aid came and died before the ambulance (called to remove him to the hospital) arrived. The body was taken to an undertaker on Howard street and early Thursday morning Messrs. Hartwell took charge and brought the remains to his late home. The funeral service will be held Sunday afternoon, at three o'clock, Rev. S. C. Bushnell conducting the same, assisted by a former pastor, Rev. G. H.

Flint, of Boston, where the family resided before coming here. It will be remembered Mr. and Mrs. Williams celebrated their 25th anniversary in October last.

Brief News Items.

Hon. Arthur P. Gorman has been returned to the U. S. Senate from Delaware. He was retired three years ago.

A broken axle on a car caused a delay of over an hour, Monday afternoon, in the Boston Elevated system. The accident occurred near the Boylston station.

Chas. M. Schwab, the steel magnate, denies emphatically that he has been gambling at Monte Carlo. He is on an automobile trip through a section of southern France.

A Suburban Fare League has been formed, the object being to secure a five cent fare on the electric to all points within a radius of fifteen instead of ten miles away. The prime movers are mainly residents in the southerly section of the belt. The League has headquarters at 176 Federal street, Boston. In the circular issued it is urged that all persons within the territory above named who are interested in the movement, either call in person or communicate with the officers of the league, in order that committees may be formed in those cities and towns not yet organized.

Theatrical Notes.

"There were quantities of people in Huntington Chambers to see the new play, 'The Magic Fiddle,' at its first performance last Saturday, and they all had the best time there ever was laughing and applauding and enjoying themselves. No, they were not all children."

At Boston Music Hall Monday, Jan. 20, will witness the first production in Boston of another Weber-Field gayety,—"Hurly-Burly." This latter concoction, like its predecessor, is notable for its sparkle, its tunefulness, its quaint characterizations, its irresistible comedy, its comely chorus and its dainty dances; but the color scheme will be entirely different, the scenes, costumes and other decorative accessories.

One of the best known and conservative critics said, in the Boston Journal last Sunday, after the opening of "Morocco Bound." "What everybody wants to know is: Are the girls pretty? They are. Is the music bright and catchy? It is. Is there any good dancing? Loads of it. How about the scenery and the costumes? Right in every respect, the costumes dainty in design, picturesque in coloring, eye filling and well filled to the eye. All this is 'Morocco Bound.' Pretty good, huh?"

"My Antonette," the Americanized English musical comedy, has taxed the seating capacity of the Columbia Theatre, Boston, ever since its first presentation. "The book is by George Danes, and the music by Ivan Caryll. The piece has run for two years in England, and is still the rage. The book and songs have been brought down to date and in addition to interpolated musical numbers, a number of local hits have been introduced. Unlike the usual English play, the comedy goes with a snap and a van from the opening chorus to the curtain number of the last act. There are a number of catchy airs which are destined to become popular."

Possibly the greatest success achieved by any play seen in Boston this season is that which has been won by "David Harum," now being presented at the Colonial Theatre, with the well known actor, William H. Crane, in the title role. As is to be imagined the play is a dramatization of Edward Noyes Westcott's popular novel and since its original production last year it has had more favor showered upon it than was given to any other work that has reached the stage from between the covers of a book. The play is one that makes one laugh and laugh a great deal and in the last act there are one or two fleeting scenes that bring the tear drops unbidden and unrestrained to one's eyes. As for Mr. Crane's portrayal of David Harum, it is said to be by long odds the best piece of character delineation seen on the stage in years.

Wm. J. Rooney, formerly of Police Division I, Boston, now Special Officer of Bureau of Criminal Investigation, writes us:—

"I have used Jaynes' Balsam of Tar for eight years in my family and have found it the best of anything I ever used for coughs or colds. My children cry for it when they have a cough or cold. I have a wife and five children and would not sleep without having it in my house. It has saved me many doctor's bills. I think it is the best remedy on earth for coughs and colds."

EAST LEXINGTON LOCALS.

Mr. Dane gave us good paths after the Sunday storm.

Mr. Eli Steeves has left our village and is working at Waverley Oaks.

The Friday Club met at Mrs. M. H. Pero's, too late to give an account this week.

Mr. Easton will preach next Sunday evening on "The Fairy Carpet," at Village Hall.

The Lexington Firemen's Relief Association had a goodly representation from here.

Miss Helen Hamblen spent last Sunday with her sister, Miss Anna Hamblen, at Wellesley.

Mrs. Bartlett J. Harrington has been quite sick this week and is under Dr. Tilton's care.

Notwithstanding the storm there were thirty present at the Follen church service Sunday morning.

Mrs. M. H. Pero entertained Sunday night, Misses Lottie, Grace and Sophia Perault, from Dorchester.

Miss Della Pero spent Sunday at Cambridge and Saturday night attended a pleasant "Basket Ball" party.

Mrs. Lucius A. Austin received last week from the Rebekah Lodge a Past Noble Grand's regalia, which is very handsome.

Rev. Thos. Thompson's family is quite an addition to our village, the daughter, Miss Mildred, singing in the choir, and the boys are bright scholars in our school.

Rev. Mr. Cochrane preached last Sunday evening on "Our gospel, and does it bring to us anything of good news." He said most emphatically,—"a higher and fuller life, a closer contact with God."

Mrs. Harry Alderman presided at one of the table at the spread given by Mrs. Minot R. Lawrence for the Harvard Apollo Club, after the benefit concert last week Thursday evening, at Arlington.

Mr. Frank Whittemore intends remaining in town, moving his milk business to the barn now occupied by Mr. Palmer, who will use his new building, and he will board with his aunt, Madam Locke.

On Thursday of this week, Misses Abbie C. Smith and Ida Cutler left for the south, their objective point being Thomaston, Georgia, where they boarded last winter, and will meet others from Lexington.

Mr. Cornelius Wellington has purchased for a home the estate on Pleasant street owned by Mr. Frank Whittemore, and intends moving there in February. The estate recently purchased by him on Maple street we understand is for sale.

With the incoming of January our older citizens are always forcibly reminded that it was this month which brought to our village the sad news of Dr. Follen's sudden death in the ill-fated steamer Lexington on that terrible night when she was burned on the coast.

Tuesday evening a party from here attended at the Boston Theatre, the play, "Way Down East," which, with its real people and real story of life, has been so attractive to so many. Though its characters are familiar to the patrons of the drama, the homely picture of New England life which it presents has a magnetic charm which warms the hearts of all who see it.

Sunday evening there was no regular preaching service at Village Hall. Rev. Mr. Cox was present and also Mr. Main and Mr. Easton. Mr. Easton read the Scriptures and Rev. Mr. Cox led in prayer, and addresses were made by those present pertaining to the purchase of the land for their new church home. Mr. Main said they must have "Hope, Faith and Works." All the good we get comes from doing good to others.

The portion of our news concerning our Baptist friends here last week was unfortunately switched off the track and appeared in the centre news, making matters a little mixed up. The ladies of the Baptist Aid Society of East Lexington, purpose having a turkey supper on Wednesday evening, Jan. 22, at Emerson Hall. The bill of fare will be good and after all are filled there will be a graphophone entertainment, musical and literary exercises. It is hoped there will be a large attendance.

The snow, the beautiful snow, greeted us on all sides on Sunday morning. It is rarely nature gives us such a lovely winter picture as was presented to our view in our own back yard, for the two immense Norway spruce trees were loaded with the glistening snow and their branches were weighed down with their treasures and they were so interlaced that they formed a roof for a large amphitheatre underneath them, with the ground almost bare, with now and then a spot of bright green grass.

The ministers do not particularly relish Old Prob treating us to so many stormy Sabbaths this winter, but they make the best of the inevitable and are thankful they have some brave souls to aid them in holding up their otherwise weak hands. Rev. Mr. Cochrane preached last Sunday morning from the words found in Romans 8:6: "For to be carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." He illustrated his subject by alluding to a parent who might be carried away with the beauty of their child's face; and while this might not be wrong, it is far better to appreciate the child's inner beauties of character.

Sunday evening Mr. John H. Holmes, of the Harvard Divinity School, will give an address at seven o'clock at the Follen church, on "The Union,—what it is and what it should be." Give the stranger, who so kindly comes to speak to us, a cordial welcome and full church.

We have been requested to insert the following notice in our column:—Will the person who witnessed the collision of sleighs on Massachusetts avenue between East Lexington Inn and East Lexington railroad station, Sunday evening, kindly send their address to Box 37, East Lexington, Mass.

Mr. M. H. Pero, while fixing the pole to Col. Wm. A. Tower's sleigh, accidentally had a nail fly up to his glasses and broke one lens, pieces going into his eye, but Col. Tower took him to Dr. Valentine's, where they were removed, and he is getting over what might have proved a serious accident.

Another town meeting is called to see whether the good people of Lexington will advance some more money for the L. H. school building. The household of voters are divided, some thinking that when a thing is begun it should not be partially done, and others that the outside trappings are not so essential.

Tuesday evening once and again "The Jolly Four" are determined to keep the ball rolling, so held another of their pleasant dancing parties. The ladies were prettily dressed and the dancing thoroughly enjoyed by the many participants. The electric accommodated them, being so accessible to the hall, and there were many from out of town. The crisp and frosty winter air gave an inspiration to pleasure-seekers, which, combined with good music, made it one of the red letter festivities of the winter.

Mr. Lorimer, of the Baptist church, at Maplehurst, (the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Stevens of Westminster ave.), to Mr. Alfred Murdock, of Hartford, Ct., where the couple will reside. The reception was given by the "Farther Lights" of the Baptist church, and about forty invited guests were present. During the evening the following programme was rendered: Piano solos by Miss Lillian Jukes; duets, violin and piano, Mr. Walter Schumacher and Miss Maria Schumacher; song, "The Burlesque Band," Miss Muriel Brandenburg, Master Joseph Burr; selections from phonograph. The phonograph was owned and operated by Mr. Harold Streeter, who kindly furnished the music during the reception. Miss Huckins was the recipient of a handsomely framed picture from the Farther Lights, of which society she is a member. Miss Annie Berglund made the presentation in well chosen words. At the close of the evening the friends of Miss Huckins were given the opportunity to say "good-bye." Her many friends will miss her, but all join in wishing her much happiness in the new relations in life into which she has entered.

—The funeral services of the late Mrs. Munroe were held Sunday afternoon at two o'clock, at her home on Westminster avenue. The large number of old-time friends and neighbors were present. Mrs. Deborah Munroe had suffered for many years with a disease from which she had no hope of recovery; yet few women bore more bravely than did she the certain doom. At her funeral, Rev. Mr. Taylor, of Park Avenue church, who had given her the sympathy and ministry of a pastor, said Mrs. Munroe was a religious woman. Her favorite poems (one of which Miss Margaret Elder read at the funeral by special request) were religious and devout. At the last moments of her life she expressed unshaken confidence in a good God and in his love through Jesus Christ. In her affliction she seemed intent on bearing her own burden, except her most loyal daughter, whose love and ministry throughout these years has been beyond criticism. Nor was she unmindful of others' rights to the best that she could give, and her patience under great suffering was beautiful, full as it was of cheerful fortitude. From her window overlooking the street, she kept her eye on what was passing, and besides diverting her mind in this way, kept in touch with much of the outside world. Mrs. Munroe was domestic. Her interest in her home and the articles she could fashion for its adornment always filled a large place in her daily life. At the service two hymns, special favorites of hers, were sung by a quartette. The sympathy of the community goes out to Mrs. Munroe's daughter, Miss Bennett, in this trying moment, and to General Munroe, who will severely feel this bereavement. A good woman has gone home.

—The annual meeting of the Park Avenue church was held Tuesday evening. The attendance was very large. A large committee of young ladies prepared a sumptuous supper which was thoroughly enjoyed by the company. After supper the clerk called the meeting to order and Joseph C. Holmes was chosen moderator. After prayer by the Pastor, reports of a most encouraging nature were presented by the clerk E. W. Nicoll, by the treasurer C. T. Parsons, who also reported for the Standing committee; the Church committee by the pastor; the Sunday school by Supt. Minot A. Bridgman; the Pres. Endeavor Society, by E. W. Nicoll; the Pres. Woman's organization by Mrs. Geo. H. Averill; music committee by J. R. Mann, and other special committees. After the business of the annual meeting it was voted with great enthusiasm to increase the pastor's salary in the sum of two hundred dollars. WASHINGTON LETTER

[Special Correspondence.]

One hundred more policemen for this city and a rearrangement of committee handling of District affairs in congress are two features which impress Representative Jenkins of Wisconsin as being vital at this time, one for the present and the other for the future welfare of the District of Columbia.

As a leading member of the house committee on the District of Columbia Mr. Jenkins has for a number of years been a close observer of the attitude of congress to the District and has also kept himself posted regarding the detailed workings of the municipal government of the capital. In discussing the matter the other day Mr. Jenkins said:

"As far as the local police force is concerned it is a splendid body of men, and it is only repeating what others continually remark to say that this is the best governed city in the United States. I am reliably informed that the average policeman in this city works thirty-six hours out of forty-eight. Now here is a chance for the humanitarian to get in some good work. There is a growing demand for the reduction of the hours of labor, and it is a sad commentary on the national government that right here at the seat of government men whose duty it is to protect life and property and be continually exposed should be compelled to work as the police officers of this city are compelled to work."

Washington's Shiny Foot.

The big ornamental brass doors at the eastern entrance of the senate wing of the capitol have as long as the oldest employee of the big building can remember been noted for a singular peculiarity. One of the scenes represented on the door is that of Washington passing through Trenton, the ladies of the city strewing flowers in his way. Washington is mounted, and his right foot extends beyond the usual lines of ornamental work. The foot is strikingly prominent because of the high polish on it, which makes it glisten in the morning sunlight with all the brightness of gold. The guides at the capitol always show those handsome brass doors to visitors and explain to them the meaning of the scenes depicted on them. Almost invariably some one of the group of visitors steps forward and, putting his or her thumb on the shiny foot of the Father of His Country, remarks while rubbing it:

"What makes this foot so shiny?"

The guide invariably replies:

"That is just what does it."

Then the visitors laugh and are taken to other points of interest, and their places are soon taken by another group to repeat the scene, including the foot rubbing and the query about the cause of the phenomenon.

The Capital's Plump Women.

"The thing that impresses me most about the Washington crowds," said a woman who has been spending the past two years in the City of Mexico, "is the comforting number of fat women. Before I went to Mexico I used to think overplump women weren't good to look at, but now I admire them all hugely. There aren't any of them in the Mexican capital. Spanish women everywhere else put on flesh as they grow past their first youth, but in the City of Mexico they grow painfully thin. The climate is worse on the complexion than that of Colorado. It dries the skin and gives it a dull, saw-like look. Washington women look like pictures to me. Their skins are so clear and they're so delightfully plump. An antiobesity specialist would starve to death in Mexico."

All He Could Get.

Senator Burrows of Kalamazoo and Senator McMillan of Detroit are not only colleagues, but also close friends. They are given to joking each other at times. A day or two Senator Burrows had occasion to go to the department of agriculture in behalf of a constituent. On his way back he met Senator McMillan, who stopped him and said:

"Where have you been, my son?"

"Over at the agricultural department," replied Senator Burrows.

"Did you get anything?" asked Senator McMillan.

"Nothing but a pretty plant they gave me for my wife," replied Senator Burrows. "That was the only thing I could find that was not in the classified service."

Opposed to Penny Postage.

Representative Loud of California, chairman of the committee of postoffices and post roads, talked with the president the other day about postal legislation. Mr. Loud is opposed to penny postage. "That is out of the question," he said. "With penny postage there would be a deficit of at least $35,000,000 a year in the receipts of the postoffice department." Mr. Loud is opposed to government ownership of telegraph lines, as has recently been proposed.

Appreciated the Joke.

Representative Richardson of Tennessee, the minority leader of the house, formally presented the president with a beautifully bound set of his compilations of the messages and papers of the presidents of the United States. In making the presentation Mr. Richardson laughingly asked the president to read carefully the constitution and Declaration of Independence. The president took the joke good naturedly and said that he would.

To Protect the Flag.

Seven senators have introduced bills to prevent the destruction of the American flag. Senator Penrose heads the list and bases his measure on strong grounds. He claims that the government is permitting the flag to be defaced in the Philippines, and in Manila the stars and stripes are used to advertise saloons and as signboards on places of objectionable reputation.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

The Price of Liberty.

Reddy the Clinch breathed freely again.

"Not guilty!" was the verdict. After many hours of terrible suspense a jury of his peers, influenced by the fervid eloquence and the falling tears of his lawyer, had declared that Reddy did not steal the safe, but that the crime was committed by his astray body while it was projected into a state of kleptomaniac.

Turning, he grasped the hand of his legal champion, Holdem Uppharde, the celebrated criminal lawyer, who put in his time wearing noisy diamonds while the majority of his clients put in their time wearing bangles on their ankles at Sing Sing, Ossining, N. Y.

"Well, Mr. Uppharde, wot's de damage?" Reddy the Clinch muttered uneasily, thrusting one hand into his pocket with a deftness born of experience.

"We'll call it only a thousand this time, Reddy," responded the lawyer.

"A thousand?" gasped Reddy. "A thousand wot?"

"A thousand frapped plunks and not a plunk less," the legal luminary responded grimly.

Where were his tears now? "All I've got, you know, is a thousand and a fever," protested Reddy.

"I know. But you don't think I'd take all you have, do you?" the lawyer said indignantly.

"Aw, of co'se not, of co'se not!" Reddy cried ironically. "Here's de dough, and I don't klick on givin' it up, but I hates to lose faith in human natur'. I hates to see a bright lawyer like you so unprofessional."

"So unprofessional?" growled the lawyer.

"Dat's wot I said—so unprofessional," repeated Reddy the Clinch. "It ain't true, is it?"

"What isn't true?"

"Dat dere's honor even among thieves?"

And, with an injured sigh, a tear in his eye and one little finger in his pocket, Reddy the Clinch went out into the cold world to project his astral body in the direction of another portable safe.—Philadelphia North American.

I had recourse to the whole category of cathartics, aperients, laxatives, etc., but the relief I found was only temporary. Indeed, in most cases, after I had taken them for any length of time, the early efficacy seemed entirely vitiated. I had so often seen in the advertisements of the statement, one gives relief, that at last it so impressed itself upon me that I decided to give them a trial. A trial was entirely convincing and in a short time I was well. While I have now no regular use for them I always keep them on hand, to be used in case of emergency."

NEW SHORT STORIES

Politeness a Handicap.
R. R. Sheffield, the fullback, came up from Princeton the other Sunday to address the West Side Young Men's Christian association at Princeton, and in illustration of one of his remarks he told an interesting anecdote of the football field. Fisher, the giant center of the Princeton team, was unable to make the team at first, for, while he had the requisite physique for a fine player, he seemed to lack that essential element known in football parlance as "ginger."
"We could not understand this deficiency in him," said Mr. Sheffield, "until one day in practice a coach who had kept his eye on him noticed that he stopped and begged the pardon of his opponent for going at him in such an enthusiastic fashion in one of the mass plays. Fisher's fault was discovered. He was too polite. He had always been very gentlemanly and courteous off the field, but on the gridiron there is not room for much politeness."
Fisher was instructed to play hard and clean and beg no man's pardon for it. He obeyed and made the team. —New York Times.

Had It in His Pocket.
Representative Dalzell was discovered pacing uneasily up and down the ways and means committee room one day recently.
"What's the matter," asked Representative McClellan. "You seem to be nervous."
"I am nervous," replied Mr. Dalzell. "I'm going to speak on this Philippine tariff bill. I always have stage fright for hours before a speech."
"And that reminds me," he continued. "Years ago President McKinley

"THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN US IS THIS," and I was waiting at a hotel to be driven to a hall where we were both anxious to speak. Mr. McKinley sat calmly smoking his cigar, while I was pacing up and down just as I am now.
"Major," I said, "don't you ever get nervous before speaking? You are as cool as a cucumber, and I'm as nervous as the valetudinarian of a young ladies' seminary."
"My dear Dalzell," he replied, "the difference is this—you have got your speech in your head, and I've got mine in my pocket." —Washington Post.

Professor Drummond at a Ball.
In a new biography of the late Professor Henry Drummond the professor tells of a "hundred freethinking young ladies at a drawing room meeting—good people strictly excluded," and continues: "Last week I went to a ball, but this is almost the only invitation I have accepted. I wanted to see the Prince of Wales in his native jungle. It was a most magnificent spectacle and quite a thing to see once in one's life. I watched the prince and princess through a dance, but had no opportunity of giving them—tracts! After all, a ball is not such a pandemonium. I had one or two really good talks, and one noble earl said to me, 'If I did not think Christ was as near me here as in church, I would not have come.'"
—He Made a Show.

An English sailor recently paid off at Malta, having only a day in which to spend the money before his ship left port, hired forty rowing boats, formed them into a procession and, seating himself comfortably in the stern of the last boat, he had himself and his forty boats rowed round and round his ship, much to the amusement of his comrades. After making the tour several times the sailor paid the boat hire and then returned to duty, evidently well satisfied.

The Convicts' Yell.
The latest in "yells," says the Kansas City Journal, is that of the convicts on their way from the jail in the county in which they are sentenced to the penitentiary. A gang of fifteen of them from Buchanan county, the sheriff's "guests" on a special car, gave vent to this yell at each railway station they passed between St. Joseph and Jefferson City a few days ago: "Two years—five years—we will stay; didn't like St. Joe anyway!"

No Megaphone Used.
"This talk about President Roosevelt conducting his heart to heart talks in the White House through a megaphone is all nonsense," said Senator Elkins to Senator Hanna the other day. "I've just come from the White House, and the president talked to me in a very low tone of voice."
"What did he say?" asked Senator Hanna.
"He asked me if this wasn't the finest weather I ever saw."

CRUEL

Heartrending Story of Nervous Wreck.
How Dr. Greene's Nervura Came to the Rescue.

Mrs. P. H. HOBAN, 1879 Third Avenue, New York City, says:

"I had a constant bearing down pain that made me feel dreadfully nervous, and the pain in my back was something awful. I suffered terribly every month. I also suffered from inflammation and had an unusual discharge that kept me from my work. My kidneys were affected and I was so nervous I couldn't sleep. Every little thing excited me, and I was so nervous I didn't feel a bit like seeing or talking to anyone. I was in a dreadful condition. No one knows what I suffered. Every morning I would feel so weak and tired I could hardly get up, and during the day I would get faint and feel as though I should fall. I doctored continually, trying first one thing, then another, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was so discouraged that I didn't care much what happened, or if I ever got well. Finally, some one told me to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and I said much about the good it did women who suffered from female weakness that I decided to try it. I cannot say enough for this medicine. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the best medicine on earth for nervousness and female weakness, and every woman who suffers from these troubles ought to get Dr. Greene's Nervura. I took four bottles of Nervura and my pains are all gone. My periods are regular every month, without the slightest pain. My backache is all gone and there isn't the slightest discharge any more. The folks who see me now, who are so contented and happy and strong I am, think it is a miracle."

Get Dr. Greene's Nervura today for your trouble, and write to Dr. Greene for advice. Address 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

CHOICE MISCELLANY

Agas of Noted Dogs.
A subscriber asks of American Field, "When is a dog considered old?" It all depends, says The Field. Some dogs show their age at five years, but these are generally petted house dogs, which are fed on all kinds of dainties and get no exercise. When dogs, however, are properly fed and cared for and get a fair amount of exercise, their lives and usefulness may be prolonged for several years beyond what they would attain when overpetted or overworked and subjected to much exposure. Champion Gladstone lived to the ripe age of fourteen years and four months; at the time of his death Count Noble was eleven years and seven months; Rodrigo, eleven years and seven months; John S. Wise's Diomed, thirteen years and three months; Prince Lucifer, thirteen years; Champion Elcho, Jr., ten years and five months; Lord Graphic, nine years and six months; Dan's Lady, nine years and seven months; and Jingo, eight years and one month.

Negro Population Doubled.
There are twice as many negroes in the United States today as there were when Lincoln set them free, and the last census returns show a white population of 67,000,000 and a negro population of 8,850,000, with about 500,000 Indians, Chinese and Japanese. The death rate among the negroes in the cities where they live in the congested districts and "where every law of nature and sanitation is defied" is nearly double that of the whites and is far in excess of the birth rate, and this high mortality has led some to think that the negro is dying out. The census figures show that this belief is erroneous. The increase of negro population in the rural districts more than makes up for the loss in the cities, and the rural surplus flock cityward in sufficient numbers to fill up the ranks. The negro population is increasing rapidly, not as rapidly as in slavery days, but as rapidly as the whites. —San Francisco News.

Animal Tamers Blond.
As tamers and keepers of animals dark men never succeed. Visits to zoos and to menageries show them to be invariably fair fellows, with yellow or brown hair and with blue eyes. Thus at the zoological garden in this city there is not a keeper who is dark. John McMillen of the lion house has light hair, a yellow mustache and violet eyes. Lover of the wolves and foxes is still more markedly blond, and in the antelope house, the snake house and the small mammal house light colors still prevail. One of the most pronounced blonds at the zoo was John Thompson, who is now in Honolulu making casts of fishes for a museum there. Thompson was one of the most successful keepers the zoo has ever had. Not only snakes and turtles, his specialty, but lions, foxes, wolves, deer and many other animals took to him naturally, and he was never scratched or bitten. —Philadelphia Record.

Guarding the French President.
President Loubet is well protected. His secret guard consists of twelve men under the orders of a police commissioner. These men watch constantly over his person. When he receives, they mingle with the guests close by him, and when he goes out they follow him and have orders never to lose him an instant from view. When he drives, they accompany him on bicycles, and it is only then that they can be recognized. This guard of thirteen men alone costs the state the nice little sum of 75,000 francs a year. —Chicago Record-Herald.

Sheep and Cattle on Range.
Wyoming has 35,000,000 acres of good grazing lands. There are about 1,000,000 cattle and 3,000,000 sheep in the state. Between the cattlemen and sheepmen exists a feud that not infrequently leads to murder. Sheep, as you may or may not know, feed in so close order that when a flock has fed over a range not a spear of grass remains. Cattle browse at random and leave behind more than they eat, so that the range may provide sustenance for two or three herds, one following the other.

"Roosevelt at San Juan Hill" is to be the subject of a painting by Vassili Verezhagin, the painter of battle scenes. The famous Russian artist arrived in New York from Europe recently to conduct an exhibition of his painting at the Art Institute. He announced his intention to devote two years or more to the work of portraying on canvas the battle, which, he thinks, because of Roosevelt's elevation to the presidency, is the most interesting war scene of recent times to Americans.

Oil on Troubled Waters.
A test of a cannon that throws a shell designed to scatter oil on boisterous waves was recently made. The shell is of wood and conical in shape. It contains two gallons of oil. At one end of the projectile is a vent. This is covered with paper, which is blown off as the shell leaves the piece, allowing the oil to escape. In this way it is the purpose of the inventor to calm a rough sea for the distance of a mile, making a smooth path for a lifeboat to follow on her way to disabled vessels.

The Lamb and the Bunko Victim.
It is a common saying that the person who buys a "gold brick" or invests in "green goods" gets just what he deserves in view of the wide publicity constantly given in the press about such transactions. But the examples of lamb shearing in finance are quite as common, and the loser of a fleece is deserving of about the same measure of sympathy that the bunko victim usually receives. —Los Angeles Herald.

BLUE BIRD 5 CENT CIGAR.

1—Because the very best material is used in their construction.

2—Because they are not just as good as other cigars, but better.

3—Because the value is put into the goods and not in expensive labels and show cards.

4—Because they are a home product and local enterprise should be encouraged.
